3. The EFO Funds will be utilized by the Bank in accordance with the Bank's applicable policies and procedures, as the same may be amended from time to time, including its framework to prevent and combat fraud and corruption and its screening procedures to prevent the use of Bank resources to finance terrorist activity, in line with the Bank's obligations to give effect to the relevant decisions of the Security Council, taken under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations. The Contributor acknowledges that this provision does not create any obligations of the Bank under the anti-terrorist financing and asset control laws, regulations, rules and executive orders of an individual member country that may apply to the Contributor, nor will it be deemed a waiver, express or implied, of any of the privileges and immunities of the Bank.
4. The Contributor will make payment(s) of the EFO Funds in accordance with the payment schedule as specified in the Annex.
5. The Contributor shall deposit the EFO Funds into the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) bank account as the Bank Contact specifies in writing to the Contributor Contact.

1. Objectives:

ICHA brings together corruption investigating bodies, prosecuting authorities, international organizations, and other professionals from over 130 countries. The purpose is to foster the exchange of practical solutions and international action to counter corruption. The event is usually attended at the level of head of agency or senior official, representing both developed and developing country governments.

2. Description of Activities and Outputs:

The overall objective of the International Corruption Hunters Alliance (ICHA) is to support national authorities and international actors engaged in the fight against corruption to collaborate, share knowledge and expertise, and articulate a collective global mission to stem corruption and its harmful impacts on the World Bank's goals of poverty reduction and shared prosperity. ICHA meetings have covered topics of core relevance for corruption investigators and prosecutors, with a number of prevention-focused sessions as well. ICHA events have also been used to anticipate and expand the dialogue on cutting edge topics (like Illicit Financial Flows, Beneficial Ownership, Data Analytics for anti-corruption, and Alternatives to Prosecution in the Fight Against Corruption). This year's cross-cutting theme for the event is "Coalitions Against Corruption. ICHA members, practitioners, and experts from around the world will engage with and learn from each other on a range of topics.

1. Overcoming challenges in corruption investigations and prosecutions; 2. Asset recovery and restitution; 3. State capture, fragility, security and the links to corruption; 4. Emerging practices around data analytics and data privacy; 5. Whistleblower protections; 6. Tax crime and corruption; 7. Sextortion: the scale of the problem and how to address it; 8. and other topics. The aim is to provide ICHA members with an opportunity to discuss shared priorities and concerns, ensuring they leave the meeting with a strong, diverse network of anti-corruption experts and useful resources to draw upon in the future.
